

BISHOP INSTALLS DEAN BRATENAHN

Formally Turns Over to Him
Pastorate of the Cathedral.

VERY REV. G. C. F. BRATENAH,
First Dean of the Washington Cathedral.

An impressive ceremony took place today in Bethlehem Chapel, Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul, Mount St. Alban, when the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenah, former rector of St. Alban's parish church, was installed in the office of dean of the Washington Cathedral by Bishop Alfred Harding, in the presence of a distinguished gathering of the clergy and laity.

The services began at 11 o'clock, and continued for two hours, with a sermon by Bishop Harding, special prayers having been prepared for the occasion. A procession was formed in the cloister and entered the cathedral from the west door, choir boys leading the way through the church. In the procession, in addition to Dr. Bratenah, were Canon W. L. De Vries, Canon R. P. Williams, Bishop Harding, Rev. Charles T. Warner, rector of St. Albans, Col. George T. Russell, Thomas Hyde, F. B. Weaver, Dr. W. C. Rives, Gen. John M. Wilson, Dr. Marcus Benjamin, Henry P. Blair and others.

Obligation of the Dean.

During the ceremony Dr. Bratenah made a declaration under oath, saying, in part:

"I, George Carl Fitch Bratenah, dean of this cathedral church, do declare that I will be faithful to the church of Washington, and to the bishop and chapter of the same."

After promising to observe the constitution, he declared: "I will be ready at all times with my presence and counsel to assist the bishop, as his vicar and secretary for administration, when and where he shall reasonably require this of me."

In installing Dr. Bratenah as dean of the cathedral Bishop Harding said, in part: "I do install and induct you into the real, actual and corporal possession of the deanery of the said church, together with all the rights, duties and privileges thereunto appertaining."

Bishop Harding preached a sermon, calling attention to the fact that the ceremony of installing Dean Bratenah was taking place Ascension day, a day upon which there have been many important gifts to the church, and he said that the selection of Dean Bratenah meant no experiment, as Dr. Bratenah has often been tried in the service of the church and never found wanting. The choir sang the Te Deum Laudamus and a number of hymns, concluding with "The Son of God Goes Forth to War."

FEAST OF THE ASCENSION.

Protestant Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches Observe Occasion.

The feast of the Ascension, forty days after Easter Sunday and commemorating the ascension of Christ into heaven, is being observed in the Protestant Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches of the city today.

In the larger Catholic churches of the city masses were held each hour during the morning, while in the smaller parishes two and three were held. This evening at 8 o'clock the Knights Templar of the District will assemble in the Church of the Ascension and the sermon of the occasion will be preached by Rev. J. Henning Nelms, rector of the church and member of the order.

PRESIDENT FAVORS BILL.

Wants Federal Compensation Measure Passed to Serve for Model.

President Wilson told Representative McGillicuddy of Maine today that he favored the Kern-McGillicuddy bill now pending in Congress for the compensation of employees of the federal government injured in the federal service and would like to have it passed so that it might serve as a model for similar state laws.

Under the measure federal employees totally disabled would receive 66-2-3 per cent of their monthly pay, and employees partially disabled would receive the difference between 66-2-3 per cent of the monthly pay and their earning capacity.

The bill has already been favorably reported by the Judiciary committee of the House, and has received the support of the Department of Labor. Mr. McGillicuddy said today that he would push it as rapidly as possible.

STANDARD OIL INQUIRY REACHES ACUTE STAGE

Attorney General Gregory Says Contempt Proceedings Depend Upon Next Few Developments.

Attorney General Gregory said today that consideration of whether the Standard Oil Company has committed any contempt of court by violating the United States Supreme Court's dissolution decree had reached a stage in the Department of Justice where, while no final decision had been reached, the government's course one way or the other probably would be decided by the next few developments, which are expected soon.

The Attorney General conferred with President Wilson today, but would not say they discussed the subject, and he would not indicate what conclusions were reached by his investigation so far.

For some time the department, in co-operation with the federal trade commission, has been investigating particularly the recent rise in the price of gasoline, as well as the general question of whether the Supreme Court's dissolution decree has been carried out.

The Attorney General's opinion of the opinion that inasmuch as the decree permitted the dissolution of the big company into separate corporations having practically the same ownership as the trust which the government prosecuted so many years, competition has not actually been brought about by the house of commons today, moved an adjournment of parliament until June 29, which gave the subject they desired to take up, John Dillon, Irish nationalist, said the recent rebellion in Ireland, such as the continuance of martial law and the arrest of peaceful citizens, of which he would like to speak. However, he recognized it was impossible for any one to enter upon these topics without engendering an amount of heat which might be extremely injurious to the interests of Ireland.

Mr. Dillon did not take a hopeful view of the efforts now being made by David Lloyd George, minister of munitions, to reconcile the various Irish factions. He said, however, that no Irishman with the slightest sense of responsibility or regard for the future would say anything which would increase the difficulties of Mr. Lloyd George in the task he had so patriotically undertaken.

YAUQUIS UNBEATABLE ALONE AMONG INDIANS

Despite Four Centuries of Fighting, Tribe Is Still Vigorous and Very Athletic.

No Indians in the southwest have earned a greater respect for their fighting ability than the Yaquis, who were reported recently as threatening the line of communications of one of the American forces operating along the Mexican border in pursuit of bandits. Concerning this warlike tribe the National Geographic Society has issued the following bulletin from its headquarters in Washington:

"A distinguished ethnologist has said of the Yaquis that they are the only Indians on the continent who, surrounded by whites, from the beginning of their history, have never been fully subdued. In spite of the numerous defeats which they have sustained at the hands of Spaniards and Mexicans, dating back to the first half of the sixteenth century, they are today a brave, stalwart, athletic race, admired for their industry as well as for their courage. Most of the Yaquis are to be found in the southern part of Sonora, one of Mexico's border states, to the south of Arizona. Here they raise corn, cotton and the mesquite-producing maguey. The women are expert weavers, while the men are always in demand as miners, sailors, farm laborers and as expert pearl divers. Most of their trading is done at the port of Guaymas on the Gulf of California, where one of their chief articles of barter is the salt gathered on the adjoining coast. The Yaquis are not a numerous tribe, the highest estimate of their number being 57,000 in 1910. It is probable that at the present time there are not more than 20,000, about 20 per cent of whom were transported by the Mexican government to Yucatan and Tehuantepec a few years ago as the surest means of quelling the uprisings which continued to occur periodically. As far back as 1609 the Yaquis were a dreaded foe. Capt. Hurdade in that year sustaining three successive defeats at their hands, meeting with his most serious reverse when he commanded 50 Spanish cavalymen and 4,000 Indian allies.

"One of the most sanguinary revolts of the Yaquis was that which occurred in 1825, when they were led by the remarkable chief known as Banderas, because of his banner, which was said to be a relic of the Montezuma empire. Banderas was a resourceful organizer as well as a capable fighter. He manufactured his own gunpowder, and made treaties with neighboring tribes. He also recognized the advantage of 'preparedness,' and engaged several white soldiers to drill his tribesmen in the science of war.

Banderas Finally Defeated.

"At the end of three years he had been so successful that he was able to effect an advantageous peace with the Mexican government, one of the conditions being that he be made a salaried general of the regular army. A few years later Banderas led a second revolt, but this time he suffered disastrous defeat, was captured and shot in the presence of his soldiers.

"The Yaquis take their name from the Rio Yaquis (Chief river), which flows for 500 miles through the mountain gorges of Sonora, and finally emptying into the Gulf of California. Along this river the Indians make their homes of mud and adobe, with roofs of grass and mud. The warriors are a well proportioned race, but they are prone to overindulgence in the native drink, mescal. Family ties are more or less negative among the men, the custom of exchanging wives being a popular practice of a not distant past. They are closely related to the Mayas, who from time to time have been forced into an unwilling alliance with their more bellucose kinsmen.

"A noteworthy characteristic of the Yaquis is their fondness and talent for music. They have retained many of their primitive dances, but the custom of tattooing the chin and arms is no longer practiced to any general extent."

A total of 122 Baltimore firms have notified the Maryland League for National Defense of their indorsement of the military training camps, and will allow a reasonable number of their employees to attend one of the camps this summer.
